Ed White

Edward White has served as an Alban consultant since 1989. In his long and distinguished career he has served as general presbyter for the National Capital Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church (USA) (PCUSA) and was at various times chair of the Alban Institute's board of trustees, president of the Council of Churches of Greater Washington, president of the Interfaith Conference of Metropolitan Washington, and president of the Society for Advancement of Continuing Education for Ministry (SACEM). In the 1960s, Ed was active in the civil rights movement as a Freedom Rider and a coordinator for the Poor People's Campaign initiated by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s Southern Christian Leadership Council. These experiences influenced Ed's outlook and commitment to congregations, as did his early years in parish ministry for an inner-city Manhattan congregation that found renewal by embracing the wider community.

SESSION 1. What is transformation and how might it happen to me?

How do we challenge our people for borderland living if our own lives are programmed for Christian subculture?

Discipleship is obedience emerging out of our encounter with God. Without an experienced faith, the ability to explain the good news for others disappears. We are unable to distinguish how it has been good news in our own lives

If leaders are called to transform congregations into spiritually dynamic borderland movements, it will be necessary for them to discern and nurture their own souls. Professional expertise is not enough.

The only control you have in change is your ability to deal with yourself.

Leadership is first and foremost an act of authentic connection within a community of relationships.

SESSION 2. How are congregations transformed?

What Business are we in?

Profile of a Maturing Disciple

'Who Are We?'

The Missionary dimension of the Church

SESSION 3. How is the world transformed?

Where do we see God at work in the world and how do we join in what God is doing?

What story are we living out?

'Outcasts as Neighbors'
