OVERVIEW:

The Daily Office has been an essential part of Anglican spirituality since the English Reformation and before. This seminar endeavours to examine the history of the Daily Office, the role it has played in Anglican spirituality and its form as it comes to us from The Book of Common Prayer and The Book of Alternative Services.

REQUIRED TEXTS:

- The Study of Liturgy Revised Edition, ed. by Cheslyn Jones, Geoffrey Wainwright, Edward Yarnold and Paul Bradshaw (New York: Oxford University Press, 1992): Part TWO: V The Divine Office, pp. 399-454.
- Commentary on the American Prayer Book, Marion J. Hatchett (New York: Harper Collins Publishers, 1980), "The Daily Office", pp. 89-153

SUPPLEMENTARY READING:

- "Prayer Books" by Marion J. Hatchett: The Study of Anglicanism, ed. by Stephen Sykes and John Booty (London: SPCK 1988), pp. 121-132.
- A History of Anglican Liturgy Second Edition, G.J. Cuming (The Macmillan Press Ltd., 1982) Chapter 4, The First Prayer Book of Edward VI, pp. 45-69, Chapter 6: The Second Prayer Book of Edward VI, pp. 70-86.
- Prayer Book Spirituality ed. J. Robert Wright (The Church Hymnal Corporation, 1989), Chapter Four, The Daily Office, pp. 137-206.

WRITTEN SUBMISSION TOPICS:

In at least 1000 words ...

1) Trace the development of the tradition of the Daily Office to contemporary Anglican practice. How would you describe its importance for Anglican spirituality and your own spiritual practice?

OR

2) Topic of choice as approved by an instructor.
